Hundreds of small businesses helping deliver Christmas across the UK

Amazon is well prepared to provide its customers with the best Christmas shopping experience thanks to its continued investment in the UK. Amazon alone has invested £18 billion in the UK since 2010 in its UK-based research and development, fulfilment and logistics infrastructure and in 2019 alone is creating a further 2,000 new permanent jobs, taking its permanent UK workforce to 29,500.

Hundreds of small businesses and artisans selling on Amazon Marketplace, Amazon Handmade and Amazon Launchpad are offering thousands of deals this Black Friday, providing customers with a wide selection of items from handcrafted gifts to innovative new products.

Launching on Amazon five years ago, the Coconut Merchant sources ethical coconut-based products from farming communities in Sri Lanka, Thailand, Indonesia and the Philippines, selling the products to customers around the world through Amazon Marketplace. This will be the fourth time they will participate in Black Friday.

"Black Friday provides a unique opportunity for us to showcase products to new customers and boost our sales, which ultimately helps us make an even more positive impact on our farmers lives," said Al Shariat, Director of Coconut Merchant. "We've been given huge support from Amazon over the last five years - not just through Black Friday - but also with how to sell around the world and how to test selling on the high street and online with Amazon's Clicks and Mortar programme."

Al Shariat was one of the first small business owners to participate in the launch of Clicks and Mortar. Run in partnership with Enterprise Nation, Direct Line for Business and Square, the year-long pilot programme explores a new model to help online businesses experience the high street while highlighting the benefits of combining in-store and online retail.
